a) Client Obligations During Program

The Client's personalized credit restoration plan is a joint effort between GCC and the Client. To maximize results the Client is expected, and in some cases required, to perform the following activities:

Dispute Letter Review and Approval: Client acknowledges that Client has been briefed on the letters that will be sent on their behalf during the initial consultation and review of the personalized credit restoration plan.

Receipt of Creditor and Credit Bureau Correspondence: Client agrees to forward GCC ALL correspondence received by Client from credit bureaus and creditors via mail, fax, or email within ten (10) days of receipt. Client is responsible for maintaining original copies. If Client fails to forward correspondence regarding the credit disputes from the credit bureaus or the creditors by the scheduled processing date of the subsequent rounds, GCC may assume Client did not receive a response and may elect to prepare the next corresponding dispute letter. If GCC prepares the subsequent round and Client then notifies GCC of responses then (1) GCC may charge Client an additional $100.00 for each round when letters are requested or required to be re-written. Such charge may only be implemented by GCC after it has re-written the required letters; or (2) if Client continuously fails to cooperate, GCC may elect to terminate this Agreement for breach of contract. If Client needs additional time to send GCC any responses, Client is responsible for informing GCC as soon as possible of this requirement via written communication (email, text or letter).

Client Conduct Guidelines: GCC strongly encourages Client to abide by the following guidelines to achieve maximum results of their personalized credit restoration plan:

New Negative Credit Information: Client is required to disclose to GCC any potentially negative and pending credit items; including, judgments, collection accounts, and liens which are not reporting at the start of Client's program. The addition of new negative credit information may adversely impact Client's credit and ability to achieve maximum results. In the event Client fails to inform GCC of any potentially negative and inaccurate information, Client acknowledges that GCC will not be responsible for disputing that information under this Agreement.

GCC shall create dispute letters on only the tradelines that, after the initial Client consultation and subsequent review, are deemed by the Client to be reporting as inaccurate, incomplete, expired or unverified and that are challengeable under the FCRA.

Client understands that GCC cannot guarantee any specific credit score improvement or that any particular item shall be removed or improved. No two clients are alike and the results cannot be predicted ahead of time.

Consumer Credit File Rights Under State and Federal Law

You have a right to dispute inaccurate information in your credit report by contacting the credit bureau directly. However, neither you nor any credit repair company or credit repair organization has the right to have accurate, current, and verifiable information removed from your credit report. The credit bureau must remove accurate, negative information from your report only if it is over 7 years old. Bankruptcy information can be reported for 10 years.

You have a right to obtain a copy of your credit report from a credit bureau. You may be charged a reasonable fee. There is no fee, however, if you have been turned down for credit, employment, insurance, or a rental dwelling because of information in your credit report within the preceding 60 days. The credit bureau must provide someone to help you interpret the information in your credit file. You are entitled to receive a free copy of your credit report if you are unemployed and intent to apply for employment in the next 60 days, if you are a recipient of public welfare assistance, or if you have reason to believe that there is inaccurate information in your credit report due to fraud.

You have a right to sue a credit repair organization that violates the Credit Repair Organization Act. This law prohibits deceptive practices by credit repair organizations. You have the right to cancel your contract with any credit repair organization for any reason within 3 business days from the date you signed it.

Credit bureaus are required to follow reasonable procedures to ensure that the information they report is accurate. However, mistakes may occur.

You may, on your own, notify a credit bureau in writing that you dispute the accuracy of information in your credit file. The credit bureau must then reinvestigate and modify or remove inaccurate or incomplete information. The credit bureau may not charge any fee for this service. Any pertinent information and copies of all documents you have concerning an error should be given to the credit bureau.

If the credit bureau's reinvestigation does not resolve the dispute to your satisfaction, you may send a brief statement to the credit bureau, to be kept in your file, explaining why you think the record is inaccurate. The credit bureau must include a summary of your statement about disputed information with any report it issues about you.

The Federal Trade Commission regulates credit bureaus and credit repair organizations.
